§ 102. Legislative findings and purposes.

The Olbiil Era Kelulau hereby finds and declares the public policy of the nation to be, as follows:

- (a) The right of suffrage is a fundamental right in a free and democratic society, particularly since the right to exercise the franchise in a free and unimpaired manner is preservative of other basic fundamental and political rights.

- (b) Any unjustified discrimination in determining who may participate in political affairs or in the selection of public officials undermines the legitimacy of representative government.
- (c) Under the Constitution of the Republic it is within the power of the national government to prescribe and define elector qualifications for the participation of citizens in all elections, provided that states may establish minimum periods of residency for state elections.
- (d) The purpose of this chapter is to prevent any activity by the national, state or other political subdivision or government from denying or acting in such a way as to have the effect of denying any qualified citizen, on account of race, creed, clan, color, status, financial circumstance, political affiliation or sex from exercising the right to vote.
- (e) It is in the national interest that uniform standards be established for the exercise of the right to vote.

§ 107. Qualified voters; residency requirements.

(a) A citizen of the Republic eighteen (18) years of age or older may register and vote in any national, state, municipal or other election or referendum provided he has satisfied the minimum periods of residency established by law and is not in jail serving a sentence for a felony or mentally incompetent as determined by a court.

(b) States may establish minimum periods of residency for state elections and referenda provided such residency requirements are not in excess of fifty (50) days.

(c) Residence and residency shall be determined for the purpose of national elections according to the following guidelines:

(1) Once residence is established it is maintained unless the individual is physically present in another political jurisdiction on a reasonably continuous basis within a minimum thirty (30) day period with the intent to establish his permanent home therein.

(2) The most recent entry of an individual's name and residence in the General Register is presumptive evidence of an individual's residence. This presumption may be rebutted by evidence demonstrating that the entry made by the Election Commission was not in conformity with the most recent application and/or affidavit filed for registration or re-registration.

(3) An individual may establish residence in only one state and senatorial district at any point in time.

(4) When an individual no longer maintains physical presence on a reasonably continuous basis in a political jurisdiction, whether that individual continues to have the intent to establish his permanent home within that political jurisdiction will be determined by an examination of the connection of that individual to the political jurisdiction. Factors to be considered include:

(A) the amount of time the individual is physically present within the political jurisdiction;

(B) whether the individual maintains a home within the political jurisdiction;

(C) the existence, and maintenance, of close ties with family, relatives, and friends who are physically present on a reasonably continuous basis within the political jurisdiction;

(D) the conduct of business in, and the maintenance of business contacts with persons who are physically present on a reasonably continuous basis within the political jurisdiction;

(E) the degree of personal involvement in the social, political, cultural, governmental, traditional, and religious affairs of, and organizations and institutions operating within, the political jurisdiction;

(F) the ownership of property within the political jurisdiction;

(G) other indicia of the connection of an individual with a political jurisdiction;

(H) the foregoing factors as applied to establish the connection of an individual with another political jurisdiction;

(I) the attempt to register to vote in, or file nomination papers as a candidate for office in or from, another political jurisdiction; and

(J) whether another political jurisdiction could be established as a residence.

(5) While in office, the residence of any individual elected to national office is irrebuttably presumed to be the political jurisdiction constituting his or her residence immediately preceding his or her election to such office.

(6) For the purposes of registration, once residence is established, the period of residence is computed by including the day on which an individual's physical presence coupled with requisite intent commenced and by excluding the day of registration.

(7) For the purposes of placing a candidate's name on the ballot, once residence is established, the period of residence is computed by including the day on which the individual's physical presence coupled with requisite intent commenced and by excluding the day of the election.

Commission Comments

Four percent increase in deviation from one-man-one vote ideal justified by advantages of assured political equality, unit voter integrity, and geographical homogeneity. Division of Fifth Senatorial District into two separate senatorial units outweighs the resulting negligible diminution in optimum proportionality. Cf. In Re Eriich v. Reapportionment Commission, 1 ROP Intrm. 150 (1984).

Any registered voter may petition, within sixty (60) days after promulgation of the plan, the Trial Division of the Supreme Court to review the plan and to amend it as may be necessary to comply with the requirements of the Constitution and this chapter. If a candidate withdraws or dies after the printing of the ballots, the Election Commission shall cause the name of the candidate so withdrawing or the name of any candidate who may have died to be stricken from the ballots and, in that regard, may require the services of the election board of the district or precinct in which any person was a candidate and shall notify in writing such election board of the withdrawal or death, whereupon notice thereof shall, before the opening of the polls on election day, be posted at the polling place.

(b) If a candidate withdraws his name later than 12 days before an election and the ballots are in the process of or have been printed and it becomes necessary in the opinion of the Election Commission or the election board for a reprinting of the ballots or a striking out of a candidate's name by a reprint block-out, all expenses thereof, except in case of a withdrawal necessitated for medical cause and so certified by a physician, shall be a charge against the withdrawing candidate and shall be paid by him within 60 days after such withdrawal to the Election Commission. Moneys so received shall be deposited into the National Treasury, as a local revenue general realization, available for appropriation by the Olbiil Era Kelulau.

- (e) Signature spaces must be consecutively numbered, commencing with the number one (1).
- (f) If a circulator is circulating more than one petition, each of which proposes a separate constitutional amendment, each petition must be printed on paper differing in color from that of every other petition so that the petitions are distinguishable from one another. For the purposes of this chapter, a “circulator” is any person who presents a petition to a voter for the purpose of procuring the voter’s signature.

Notes

Section 1 of RPPL 7-22 reads: Findings. It is the fundamental right of the people of Palau to petition to amend the Constitution by popular initiative. The Seventh Olbiil Era Kelulau finds that to effectuate this right, while preserving the principles of democratic government, certain precautions in the filing and circulation of the petitions regarding proposed constitutional amendments must be observed. Further, it is imperative that the national government provide, in advance of the general election in which a proposed constitution amendment will be voted on, adequate public information as to the intent and legal effect of every proposed constitutional amendment.

§ 2002. Signatories to petition.

Each signatory must personally sign or affix his or her mark to the petition. For each signatory there must also appear, printed in the English alphabet, the signatory’s name, residence address (including hamlet or city, and state, or an explanation of how to locate place of residence), telephone number, and other information that would assist in locating him or her, if necessary, to verify the signature. A signatory may request another person to print the signatory’s name, residence address (including hamlet or city, and state, or an explanation of how to locate place of residence), and telephone number on the petition. If a signatory affixes his or her mark to the petition in lieu of making a signature, two persons other than the circulator shall bear witness to the mark by signing their names next to the mark. If an individual, due to a disability, is unable to sign the petition, the individual may authorize another person to sign for him or her; and the authorized person must sign the petition while in the individual’s presence, and in the presence of the circulator.

§ 2003. Circulator's affidavit.

- (a) An affidavit of each circulator, made under penalty of perjury and subscribed and sworn before a notary public, must be attached to each petition when filed with the Palau Election Commission. The absence of a circulator's affidavit will invalidate the entire petition. The circulator's affidavit must be affixed to the last page of the petition, but need not be affixed to each signature page.
- (b) Each circulator of a petition must comply with the requirements of this section, and the affidavit must clearly identify which signatures were obtained by each circulator of the petition.
- (c) The affidavit must attest that:
 - (1) the circulator personally witnessed the affixing of every signature or mark; and
 - (2) according to the best information and belief of the circulator, each signature collected is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be; and
 - (3) duplicate signatures were not collected; and
 - (4) the circulator did not obtain signatures by any false or misleading statement, threat, or the offer of any valuable consideration; and
 - (5) the circulator made no alteration to the signature, name, or any other information written by the signatory or person assisting a signatory; and
 - (6) each person whose signature appears on the petition was permitted to read the petition or, at their request, had the petition read to them; and
 - (7) the signature sheets were attached at all times during circulation to a complete and accurate copy of the petition.
- (d) The circulator must personally affix in his or her own handwriting, his or her printed name, residence address (or an explanation of how to locate place of residence), telephone number, and the date or dates on which the petition was circulated.
- (e) The circulator must be a registered voter and a Palauan citizen.

§ 2004. Petition proposing an amendment to the Constitution.

(a) To propose an amendment to the Constitution, a registered voter of the Republic of Palau shall deliver to the Palau Election Commission a petition stating the proposed amendment in English or Palauan language, or both. If a petition is submitted in one language or the other, but not both, the Bureau of Domestic Affairs shall cause to be prepared an official translation into the other language and shall submit a copy of the translation to the person or persons proposing the amendment for his, her, or their approval.

(b) For each proposed amendment, the petitioner or petitioners shall submit to the Palau Election Commission an explanation in plain terms in English or Palauan language, or both, of the intent and effect of the proposed amendment. If the explanation is submitted in one language or the other, but not both, the Bureau of Domestic Affairs shall cause to be prepared an official translation into the other language and shall submit a copy of the translation to the person or persons proposing the amendment for his, her, or their approval.

(c) Upon agreement of the petitioner or petitioners that both English and Palauan versions accurately reflect the language and intent of the proposed amendment, the Palau Election Commission shall authorize the petition for circulation.

(d) The proponents of a petition shall have one year from the date of authorization to file the required number of signatures of registered voters with the Palau Election Commission. The number of signatures required to place a proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot is a number not less than twenty-five percent (25%) of the number of registered voters.

(e) The signed petition must be filed by hand-delivery to the Palau Election Commission during regular office hours. A signed petition must be filed not less than 180 days before the date of the next quadrennial general election in order to be included on the ballot. A signed petition filed less than 180 days before the date of a quadrennial general election shall be placed in the ballot in the next following quadrennial general election, if the petition meets all other requirements of this chapter.

(f) After the filing of the petition, no additional signatures may be filed or accepted. The Palau Election Commission shall, as soon as practicable but no event later than ninety (90) days after a petition is filed, count the names on the petition, verify the authenticity of signatures of registered voters, and declare the petition to be sufficient or insufficient to warrant placing the proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot in the next quadrennial general election. A signatory may withdraw his or her name from the petition at any time before the Palau Election Commission has declared the petition to be sufficient or insufficient.

§ 2005. Invalidation of signatures.

A signature or group of signatures on a petition shall be invalidated by the Palau Election Commission, and the corresponding name or names not counted toward the total number required for placing the proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot, if:

- (a) the signature appears more than once (in which event only the first signature encountered during verification will count); or
- (b) the signature does not match the voter's signature in the general district register maintained by the Palau Election Commission or the signature appearing on the voter's most recent affidavit filed for the purpose of absentee voting; or
- (c) the signer fails to indicate the date he or she signed the petition; or
- (d) there are material defects in the affidavit of the circulator, including without limitation the failure of the circulator to complete the required affidavit, omission of one or more of the attestations required under section 4(c), defective notarization, and the like; or
- (e) the Palau Election Commission determines that the signature is not genuine, or the manner in which the signature was obtained did not comply with the law or applicable regulations.

§ 2006. Political education as to effect of proposed amendments.

Not less than fifteen (15) days or more than sixty (60) days after the Palau Election Commission declares a petition proposing a constitutional amendment to be sufficient for inclusion on the ballot in the next quadrennial general election, the Attorney General shall prepare an explanation in plain terms of the effect and operation of the proposed amendment, if adopted. The Attorney General shall state when the proposed amendment is to become effective, if adopted. The explanation shall not exceed five hundred (500) words in length. An official Palauan language translation of the explanation shall be prepared. Copies of both the English and Palauan language versions of the Attorney General’s explanation shall be available to any person upon request at the office of the Palau Election Commission. Copies of the English and Palauan language versions of the explanation shall be published as a public service, for free, by the newspaper(s), or, if necessary, at the expense of the Palau Election Commission at least once a week in a newspaper of general circulation in the Republic of Palau for each of the four weeks immediately preceding the quadrennial general election in which adoption of the proposed amendment is to be decided.
